He Was a Fakir.

It has developed that the man who wrestled with Joe Collins at Hancock on the 21st of October was not Fred Beell as reported at that time, but is supposed to have been Ed. Adamson, who went up there under the name of Beell, and either thru design or otherwise, ended the match with a draw.

It seemed rather queer to the friends of Beell in this section that he would wrestle a draw with man like Collins, who, tho a fairly good man, is not in the same class with the Marshallfield wrestler. The outcome of the matter was that a resident of that part of the country who had heard considerable of Beell but had never seen him, wrote to this city asking for a description of the Marshallfield man and as soon as it was received he realized that it was not Beell that was there.

The men decided to prove the matter to the bottom and had friends write to Beell at Buffalo, N. Y. asking him to telegraph to Hancock as to whether he had been in that city on the night of the 21st. This he did, assuring them that he had wrestled in Buffalo that night, and sent along newspaper clippings to show that he was telling the truth in the matter.

Just what Adamson's object was in wrestling under the name of Beell is not known at this time, unless he thought that the Wisconsin man was better known up in that country and would draw more of a crowd. Adamson is quite a foxy one in his line and probably had some scheme for fooling the unsophisticated up in that part of the country.

Change of Date.

The dates for the International Live Stock Exposition, which is to be held in Chicago this fall have been changed by postponement until the week of December 16 to 23. The change is made on account of the inability of the builders of the new amphitheater to secure the structural steel in time.

All events pertaining to the exposition will be held on days of week corresponding to those arranged the previously advertised week. This change in date will no doubt make the attendance a great deal easier to a number of people who could not leave home for the earlier date.

UNDER THE WHEELS.

William Hein Meets Instant Death While Working at Green Bay Depot.

William Hein, who was yard master for the Green Bay and Western road at this point, met instant death on Saturday night while at work in the yards of the company. He was crushed beneath the wheels of the freight cars, and eight or nine cars passed over his body, but just how the accident occurred is not known as there were no witnesses to the thing.

The accident occurred about 9:30 o'clock in the evening. The men in the yards were engaged in weighing the last of the cars that had come that evening on the freight from the east. It was time for the passenger train from the east, but it was a little late and they were hurrying to get this part of the work done up as rapidly as possible.

Mr. Hein was attending to his duties about the yard, and as the cars were pulled from the scales where they had been weighing them Wm. Collier, switchman in the yards, saw Mr. Hein hanging onto a car, and as he went by on the train Mr. Hein called to Collier and told him to close the switches to the scales.

Collier did as he was requested and started west along the track. As he did so he noticed that the road-master's light had disappeared, and supposing that it had blown out or some similar mishap had occurred he gave the signal to the engineer to stop. He then followed along after the train and a minute afterward came across Mr. Hein's hat beside the track. This was the first thing that made it occur to him that there might be something the matter, but before he had had time to give the matter much thought he found the body of Mr. Hein lying across the track, with the head almost severed from the body.

It was evident at a glance that the man was dead, as the whole upper part of the body was crushed and mangled, while the neck was almost severed by the passing of the wheels of the heavy freight cars.

Aid was summoned at once and the body conveyed to the depot where it was subsequently taken care of by an undertaker.

Mr. Hein's fellow workmen at the depot are at a loss to know how the accident happened, as he was known to be a very careful man about his work. He took no unnecessary chances and was said to be a man who never got rattled by a rush of work as is sometimes the case. He was not a user of intoxicating liquor and the position in which he hung onto the car as he passed the switchman was not one where he would be apt to get beneath the wheels in case he did fall off the car. It is apparently another of the cases of death where the mystery surrounding it will never be solved.

Mr. Hein leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his loss, the oldest of the children being fourteen years of age. He was a member of the local lodge of Catholic Foresters, in which he carried an insurance of one thousand dollars.

After the accident the dead man's watch was found lying beside the track, badly twisted out of shape, and the time piece had stopped at 9:28, which was probably the exact time of the accident. It was also apparent that the body had been dragged along the track for a way, altho not for any great distance and it could be seen that the wheels of eight or nine cars had passed over him, the train having gotten clear of the body before the switchman came upon it.

The funeral of the deceased was held on Tuesday morning from the Catholic church, the remains being interred in Calvary Cemetery, Rev. Father Hegenroth officiating. Despite the disagreeable weather there was a large number of friends of the family who followed to the last resting place, the lodge of Catholic Foresters attending in a body.

Fatal Fire at Amherst Junction.

There was a fire at Amherst Junction at an early hour on Saturday morning in which one man lost his life. The name of the unfortunate was Casper Hahn, and he was a feeble minded person. It is thought that he set fire himself, which started in the Summit house carriage shed and spread to surrounding buildings, causing a loss of several thousand dollars.

A CLOSE GAME.

Merrill and Grand Rapids Play a Tie Game at Foot Ball on Saturday.

The game of football on Saturday between the Merrill and the local high school team resulted in a score of 0 to 0. It was a hotly contested game from start to finish, and there was no time when it could be predicted with certainty how the game would end.

It must be admitted that the most of the playing was done in Grand Rapids territory, but this was partly on account of several costly errors that Grand Rapids made rather than any superior playing done by the visitors. It was evident that both sides were making a heroic effort to win, and all of the tactics known to football players were tried by both sides.

Grand Rapids tried at first to win by getting around the end, but after failing in this and even at thus losing ground they tried bucking the line. They made better progress at this, but not enough to make it winning football for them.

The Merrill team appeared heavier than the home team, and it was evident that they came here to win, but Grand Rapids had also decided to win, so there was no advantage in this respect.

Grand Rapids started the game by kicking off, and Merrill took the ball and started down the field with it, but was promptly downed in their own territory. Then they failed to advance the ball the required five yards and were compelled to punt, not daring to take the last chance with the ball so near their goal. After Grand Rapids got the ball they were unable to do anything with it. They attempted to punt, but when the ball was snapped back it was fumbled, leaving it nearer the goal than when the play was started. The same kind of an error later in the game made it look as if Merrill would score, but the boys managed to hold them inside the goal line and the half ended without a point.

At the beginning of the second half it was evident that both sides had made up their mind to make just a little extra effort and thus win the game, for both went at it like tigers, but they were so evenly matched that there was no advantage and when the end of the second half was called the ball was near the center of the field with no advantage on either side.

Offer Good Prizes.

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 26. Grand Rapids high school pupils who attend the annual Northwest Wisconsin Intercollegiate Athletic meet to be given by Lawrence university the third week in the next May, will have an opportunity of winning $200 in cash prizes to be awarded by Lawrence. The authorities of the Appleton institution have decided to combine athletic with scholarship work and thus make the annual meet interesting to both pupils seeking athletic laurels and those in search of scholarship honors.

A competitive examination will be given by the professors of Lawrence university on science, mathematics, literature, and languages usually found in the course of accredited high schools. Any pupils in any free accredited high school in Wisconsin will be permitted to enter the contest. The student who stands highest in any of the following subjects, mathematics, science, Latin, German and literature will be awarded a cash prize of $50, and the student securing second place will receive a prize of $20. Thus it will be seen that $200 will be distributed among the top winners of first and second places in the five examinations. The winners of third place will receive honorary mention and their names will be published in college publications.

The Grand Rapids delegation to the annual athletic meet during the last few years has been quite liberal considering the distance from Appleton. It is expected that the additional effort on the part of the authorities of Lawrence university will make the meet more attractive and will greatly increase the attendance. In fact there is now every reason to believe that the next annual meet will result in getting together one of the largest if not the largest gatherings of high school pupils in the history of the Dodge state.

Alfred Panter Hurt.

Alfred Panter of Shannagon was quite seriously injured last Friday while at work on the railroad at that place, the result being that he had both legs broken. Mr. Panter is working on the railroad in the capacity of brakeman, and while engaged in spotting some cars near a sideway one of the binder chains on the cars became loose and the result was that the log came pulling off the car toward Mr. Panter. He tried to save himself by jumping to one side but one of his feet were caught by the falling log and crushed at the ankle and the other leg was broken above the ankle. It is unnecessary to state that the accident is a most painful one and that the young man will be laid up for some time with the injuries he sustained. Mr. Panter was married only two weeks before the accident.

STRIKE BRINGS GREAT REFORMS

Emperor Nicholas Grants Demand of People for Imperial Council.

WITTE IS HEAD OF CABINET

Statesman Who Negotiated Peace Treaty Is Given Full Sway to Put Into Effect New Governmental System for Russia.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 27.—The great railway strike has brought substantial reforms in the Russian government. Emperor Nicholas, following the advice of Count Witte, has bowed to the people and in an effort to save the empire from anarchy has granted what is practically a constitution. The project, which was put in the hands of Count Witte for elaboration, has been accepted in skeleton by the czar, and contains the following features:

Practical freedom of the press, of speech and of meeting.

New law for the people's assembly, giving it more power and a much broader scope.

As a result of a series of special ministerial councils, held under the leadership of Count Witte, whom the czar elected to represent him, for the purpose of meeting the situation, the new laws have been put in form and will be promulgated forthwith.

Hold Yachts in Readiness.

Approachments apparently prevail in imperial circles. It is reported that the imperial yacht Polar Star is lying off Cronstadt. Count Witte, even in advance of his formal appointment as premier, completely dominates the situation.

Interesting details have been learned regarding Count Witte's interview with Emperor Nicholas last week, at which it was agreed that the czar had come to limit the autocratic power and give the people a real share in the government of the empire.

The emperor asked Count Witte to speak frankly, and after listening to the statesman's exposition of the situation he appeared to be utterly unimpressed and cried out that he was weary of the struggle and felt like leaving all and fleeing to Darmstadt, hence probably the origin of the report that the emperor was going abroad.

Count Witte, however, told the emperor that in his opinion not even a republic could now save Russia from anarchy. It was the emperor's duty to the people and the country to face the situation by meeting the classes, namely, to abrogate the autocratic power and grant a constitution by creating a ministry responsible to the crown and the representatives of the nation.

Witte's Hand to Guide.

The emperor has finally accepted, requesting Count Witte to draft a project which in outline he approved last Sunday when the count agreed to accept the premiership on condition that he could name the ministers.

Count Witte reported to the czar only through himself as head of the cabinet.

It is reported that Count Witte, simultaneously with the promulgation of laws in new primary act.

IMMENSE CROWD SEES PRESIDENT

Enthusiasm Bubbles Over Checking Effort of Mr. Roosevelt to Speak.

THROUGHS CHOKED UP STREETS

Gathering at New Orleans Exceeds That of Any Other Southern City Which the Nation's Chief Has Visited During the Trip.

New Orleans, Oct. 27.—In scenes of extraordinary enthusiasm and the cheers of crowds such as were never before seen in this city of annual throngs, New Orleans expressed her gratitude to President Roosevelt for his sympathy and support throughout the fever epidemic, as well as his action in visiting the city regardless of personal danger, and brought to a close his southern tour in a manner that warmed the heart of the executive. After having been lionized for nine strenuous hours Mr. Roosevelt is on his way to salt water, homeward bound—the first President to leave the American mainland during his term of office.

It is doubtful if the president in all his travels, which now have included every state in the Union, was ever the object of a more remarkable manifestation of popular favor. The densely crowded streets, the elaborate decorations, the wild applause that greeted him along the whole route of the big military parade, the enthusiasm with which his address to a multitude in Lafayette square was received and the remarkable demonstration in his honor at a luncheon at the St. Charles hotel, were proof of the spirit in which the people welcomed him.

Enthusiasm Sways Crowd.

Probably for the first time in his public career the president was compelled to abandon a public address before he had got well started on it. It was contemplated that the military and civic parade should pass in review before the president at the city hall. Long before the parade had started the city was packed with people and the president, who had been waiting in the city hall, was jammed right up to the city hall gates and blocked the way for the parade. Half a hundred policemen, mounted and on foot, labored for an hour to make a clear space so that the president's carriage could come up to the entrance, but it was impossible, though many heads were cracked in the effort.

At the moment the president was recognized a tremendous cheer went up, and the crowd, densely packed as it was, surged forward and threatened to crush in part of the grand stand.

The president realized that an accident was imminent and if the crowd was not soon dispersed there might be serious trouble.

Behrmann to produce him immediately. He was done simply, though the mayor's voice was drowned in the hubbub.

Makes Plea for Women.

The president climbed up on the railing before which he was to speak supported by the mayor, though he kept his balance admirably. He waved his hand to the crowd and the enthusiasm broke forth with redoubled vigor. He urged the crowd to keep still, and called their attention to the fact that many women were caught in the jam and might be injured. Each utterance of his, though unheard by the mass of humanity, evoked a cheer and waving of handkerchiefs and then the president tried to deliver a short speech. It was impossible and he realized the futility of it.

"There seems to be two or three people in the streets," he started when his voice was drowned by the noise of the crowd. Mayor Behrmann attempted to silence the crowd and the president began again.

"My fellow countrymen, give me a chance," whereat there was a tremendous roar of applause, and a voice shouted: "We will give you one and we will give you another."

Again the president started: "My fellow countrymen, I am glad to see you, but I am not here to give you a chance to see me. I am here to give you a chance to see me."

"And now you have shown such extraordinary qualities throughout this dreadful summer that I want you to show your capacity to govern and that means don't jam."

Appeal crowd—I want you to wish you well, and then I am going to go.

New Baltimore, Md., special: Six persons, including several children, were injured in a collision between a trolley and a construction train.

TO BE TRIED IN WASHINGTON.

Supreme Court Decision in the Case of Alleged Conspirator.

The supreme court of the United States has decided that State Senator George E. Green of New York must go to Washington for trial on the charge of conspiring with George W. Bowers and others to defraud the government in the purchase of supplies for the postoffice department.

Mr. Roosevelt admonished the crowd to suppress itself lest the war on and children might be injured in a panic and said he was going away, at which there were cries for him to stay. The president then said:

"I only want to say that I will make a longer speech later, but I do want to say how grateful I am for your cheering and how grateful I am for the sacred veterans of the great war and my own comrades of the small war, and I want to thank the national guard of Louisiana—cavalry, infantry, artillery and the naval militia. I am proud of them, and it is a pleasure to see them today. Now, I am going away and all of you be good and go home."

There was a tremendous roar from the crowd as the president disappeared in the mayor's hall. When he reached there he said he was worn out, and that he desired a short rest at his hotel.

Chief President at Banquet.

The demonstration at the luncheon was scarcely less exuberant. When the president entered the beautifully decorated dining hall the 625 banqueters arose as one man and gave him a rousing cheer. Every reference of Gov. Blanchard, Mayor Behrmann and President Sanders of the Progressive union to the guest brought forth a storm of cheering, and when the president himself arose he had great difficulty speaking.

Every thought he uttered was the signal for an extraordinary exhibition of enthusiasm, and as his speech dealt almost entirely with local subjects and against yellow fever the banquet developed into an unceasing ovation while he was on his feet.

President Roosevelt thanked his hearers for their cordial reception and praised the work in congress of the Louisiana senators and the loyal support of the city regardless of personal danger, and when the president himself arose he had great difficulty speaking.

BANK BURGLARS SPREAD TERROR

Ridgeville, Ind., State Bank Is Looted by Band of Desperadoes.

ROBBERS DEFEY AUTHORITIES

Wreck Safe and Deliberately Exchange Shots With Officers and Citizens in Full Glare of Electric Lights, and Depart When Ready.

Ridgeville, Ind., dispatch: Armed robbers, including the woods and country for miles around in search of seven state bank robbers who were taken 1 and 2 o'clock Tuesday morning blew open the safe in the Ridgeville State bank, looted it of about $6,000 and escaped after a running fight in which the cashier of the bank and two of the robbers were wounded.

The robbers are believed to be Chicago desperadoes and a pitched battle to the death is expected if the citizens' posse now in pursuit catch up with them.

The bank's loss of $6,000 is covered by burglar insurance and neither the bank nor the depositors will lose any money.

For more than an hour the town was practically at the mercy of the robbers, who openly walked the streets, shooting at everything in sight and apparently taking their time in leaving the scene of the crime.

Five Robbers on Guard.

Five of the robbers remained on guard while two others searched the safe with charges of newly coined shells, which they all of the windows of the building. Cashier Branson fired shots at the robbers from the mouth of an alley opposite the bank and was then driven away by bullets from the robbers' revolvers. He received a bullet in the ankle.

Before going to the bank the robbers met the town watchman, overpowered and bound and gagged him.

The first charge of atrocity was exploded about 1 o'clock and the little chance. The second charge, fired fifteen minutes later, aroused Branson, who lives only a short distance from the bank building. He ran into the street, but as soon as he appeared the guards opened fire on him and he retreated into the house to get a gun.

The town of Ridgeville, Ind., is a small town of about 100 people. The bank is a small building, and the robbers were seen to enter the building and to leave it with a large amount of money.

Light is Turned On.

By this time the town was thoroughly aroused, and the electric lights were turned on and the streets filled with citizens who sought either to capture or to shoot down the bandits.

But the burglars did not fear capture, as they deliberately walked the streets and shot out the lights in wild west style.

There were seven in the party of cracksmen, and all escaped, going toward Union City.

The Chicago police were notified to watch for the cracksmen, as it is supposed they came from that city and are now trying to get back with their booty.

In Pursuit of Suspects.

Portland, Ind., special: Chief of Police Stephens started on the trail of two buggies loaded of suspicious strangers who he believes are the Ridgeville bank robbers. The suspects are persons are going toward Union City, Ohio. The police are now in pursuit of the suspects, and it is believed, were stolen last night from the magazine of the Hercules Torpedo company north of Muncie. It is believed that two of the gang are in hiding here.

Suspect at Hartford City.

Hartford City, Ind., special: An unknown man, supposed to be one of the Ridgeville bank robbers, was found along the road four miles west of this city last night by Edward Ayres, Capt. Riley Coulson and Hosh Mills of this city. The man refused to go into a farmhouse and pleaded with his captors not to send for a doctor. He gave his name as Isaac Cooper of Decatur. He was not intoxicated.

Enthusiasm Bubbles Over Checking Effort of Mr. Roosevelt to Speak.

THROUGHS CHOKED UP STREETS

Gathering at New Orleans Exceeds That of Any Other Southern City Which the Nation's Chief Has Visited During the Trip.

New Orleans, Oct. 27.—In scenes of extraordinary enthusiasm and the cheers of crowds such as were never before seen in this city of annual throngs, New Orleans expressed her gratitude to President Roosevelt for his sympathy and support throughout the fever epidemic, as well as his action in visiting the city regardless of personal danger, and brought to a close his southern tour in a manner that warmed the heart of the executive. After having been lionized for nine strenuous hours Mr. Roosevelt is on his way to salt water, homeward bound—the first President to leave the American mainland during his term of office.

It is doubtful if the president in all his travels, which now have included every state in the Union, was ever the object of a more remarkable manifestation of popular favor. The densely crowded streets, the elaborate decorations, the wild applause that greeted him along the whole route of the big military parade, the enthusiasm with which his address to a multitude in Lafayette square was received and the remarkable demonstration in his honor at a luncheon at the St. Charles hotel, were proof of the spirit in which the people welcomed him.

Enthusiasm Sways Crowd.

Probably for the first time in his public career the president was compelled to abandon a public address before he had got well started on it. It was contemplated that the military and civic parade should pass in review before the president at the city hall. Long before the parade had started the city was packed with people and the president, who had been waiting in the city hall, was jammed right up to the city hall gates and blocked the way for the parade. Half a hundred policemen, mounted and on foot, labored for an hour to make a clear space so that the president's carriage could come up to the entrance, but it was impossible, though many heads were cracked in the effort.

At the moment the president was recognized a tremendous cheer went up, and the crowd, densely packed as it was, surged forward and threatened to crush in part of the grand stand.

The president realized that an accident was imminent and if the crowd was not soon dispersed there might be serious trouble.

Behrmann to produce him immediately. He was done simply, though the mayor's voice was drowned in the hubbub.

Makes Plea for Women.

The president climbed up on the railing before which he was to speak supported by the mayor, though he kept his balance admirably. He waved his hand to the crowd and the enthusiasm broke forth with redoubled vigor. He urged the crowd to keep still, and called their attention to the fact that many women were caught in the jam and might be injured. Each utterance of his, though unheard by the mass of humanity, evoked a cheer and waving of handkerchiefs and then the president tried to deliver a short speech. It was impossible and he realized the futility of it.

"There seems to be two or three people in the streets," he started when his voice was drowned by the noise of the crowd. Mayor Behrmann attempted to silence the crowd and the president began again.

"My fellow countrymen, give me a chance," whereat there was a tremendous roar of applause, and a voice shouted: "We will give you one and we will give you another."

Again the president started: "My fellow countrymen, I am glad to see you, but I am not here to give you a chance to see me. I am here to give you a chance to see me."

"And now you have shown such extraordinary qualities throughout this dreadful summer that I want you to show your capacity to govern and that means don't jam."

Appeal crowd—I want you to wish you well, and then I am going to go.

The CONVICT COUNTRY:

FIGHTING for a MILLION

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

"At last you are in my power," said

Schiller, as he peered into the helpless man's face.

Huntington muttered something,

but it was unintelligible on account of the gas in his mouth.

As if the mere thought of being in his enemy's power was not enough to distract the bound and helpless victim, Schiller added: "And soon your lovely Pearl will join you in your imprisonment!"

Huntington struggled fiercely. His eyes sparkled with defiance while his hand went up to his throat. "His daughter, the lovely Pearl, being enticed into the power of these villains!" It was the bitterest kind of gall and wormwood to the bound man. "And he unable to assist her!"

"Ah, you feel this blow!" chuckled

Schiller, contented. "And the chances are that you will live to see your vic-timous maid the wife of a convict! You made me one, so you won't care, eh?"

He kicked the prostrate man. The man

"Did farwell to freedom, home and family," said Schiller, tauntingly to him, "for you never will enjoy them more. It is my turn now! I swore to be even with you, and I mean to keep my word. You have made me suffer years of toil and the loss of freedom, and now I will reap the same indignity upon you, too. I have torn you from your family and friends and am carrying you into bondage worse than death—you and your Pearl—and will seat her upon the throne of a people ungrateful and impure. You will be forced to tend the sick and dying—at any and all times and there will be no pleasure in performing a good day's work, no attention, no quiet freedom to rest at after your labors are over!"

Dr. Huntington scarce heard the taunt. His thoughts were far away.

He was thinking of his wife, his faithful companion through years of toil and struggling and his heart bled for her. The thought was terrible, would his gentle, loving helpmate lose her mind. God grant that such would not be her fate. Of Pearl he dared not think—it was too horrible.

When morning broke many miles had been passed over, and the muddy waters of the mighty Ohio lay stretched out before them. Now

Pearl and her father were placed under a powerful drug and became unconscious of their surroundings. In this state they were taken on board a packet plying down the river, and they knew not whether the tide bore them.

ACCENT NOT GOOD ENOUGH.

Old Skinner Unsuccessful in Feeling Englishman.

It is a common experience of American tourists to be recognized as Americans when in England, and the readiness of the English in letting one know that he is stamped as it were, with the word American often annoys, no matter how polite

the one may be, says the New York Times. In this case, however, the reason for the recognition is not the fact that the tourist is an American, but that he is a man of English descent. When Mr. Skinner was abroad last summer they grew weary of having things explained to them as though they were foreigners and unable to understand the English language. Mr. Skinner was not inclined to go into a shop in Warwick one day so that Mrs. Skinner might inquire the price of something in the window which caught her fancy; he insisted that the clerk would instantly class his voice as American, or his clothes, or something, and it was all so tiresome.

"Why don't you use that wonderful

English accent of yours and fool the man?" suggested the clever wife.

The idea was a good one, and Mr.

Skinner smiled and went in confidently, asking—with the rising inflection and true British casual manner—the price of his wares. Mrs. Skinner was charmed with the air of performance.

"This 'ere one, sir!" asked the shopkeeper. "Well, sir, hit sells for four shillings, sir, which is about one dollar in your money, sir."

KEEPING THE "WIRES" CLEAR.

Device to Prevent Air Messages From Interfering.

In order to prevent wireless messages from interfering with one another, endeavors have been made to send electrical waves only in one direction, as in the case of light.

Prof. Braun has been engaged in experiments of this kind, and in a lecture before the Strasbourg University Association of Electricians and Naturalists he announced that these experiments had come to successful conclusion. Prof. Braun's methods are based on the fact that three antennae arranged in the angles of a regular triangle, and excited by waves of the same period, but of different lengths, will produce a beam of radiation of a definite direction.

The inventor states that one of the three antennae begins vibrating at 1,250,000 of a second earlier or later than the two others, this difference in time being kept up, according to experiments, with an accuracy of about one second in three years.

This will result in different radiation according to the difference of the space, and by simply inverting the crank the direction of maximum effect can be shifted by 60 or 120 degrees.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The doctor is well known in this vicinity, and the cures he has wrought speak volumes for him. His studies and researches in the diseases which he makes a specialty, have been prosecuted with an untiring application and vigor, which have awarded him with wonderful success. In his treatment, he has not remained satisfied with the old, well beaten course. His system embraces new ideas, new medicines and new operations, and these combined with the old methods of the schools, have ever been attended with the most gratifying results."

"Those in this vicinity in want of a skillful physician, an find one in Dr. Brewer who makes his next visit to the Dixon Hotel in this city on Friday, Nov. 17th. Consultation and examination free."

"1847 ROGERS BROS."

SPOONS, FORKS, KNIVES, Etc.

have been made for over fifty years, steadily gaining in character of designs, finish and general popularity, but best of all, the good old "ROGERS" quality has been maintained. It would be hard indeed to improve upon the wearing qualities first exhibited by this brand, and which have made "1847 ROGERS BROS." the most famous of all silverware. Do not experiment by trying something that has not stood the test of time. Buy goods which have a well-known and well-earned reputation, and you run no risk. There are only "Rogers." The original and genuine are stamped "1847 ROGERS BROS."

Sold by leading dealers everywhere. Send to the makers for catalogue No. "C" containing newest designs.

Three of a Kind

Wouldn't seem to beat two pair, in this case. But any old-timer, who has "got in" with a little party, "just to make the play a little more interesting," will tell you that they always do. But we aren't worrying about what you one of a kind is all we have and all we want. Of course we've switched the subject and are talking about business now our own business, too. We aren't caring what also does in business. We intend to do the square thing. We aren't the kind to hold an ace or two up our sleeves. Our stock of Building Material of all kinds can't be beat. In other words it is a royal flush. If you ask those who have dealt with us in the past, they

Any One

Will Tell You

that our Lumber, Sash, Doors, Blinds, Lath, Shingles, Mouldings, and everything else you could possibly use in building anything whatsoever are of the best. The best of everything. That's what we sell. Don't we get the jack-pot?

AS TO TRY AND STEM THE TIDE THAT HAS SET IN ALL OVER THE COUNTRY FOR

A salary earning education

The facts are simply these: It is being demonstrated every day in all parts of the country that those who have received special instruction along the line of the work in which they are engaged are succeeding very much better than those who have not received such instruction, and hence very many who are ambitious and every body should be, are losing no time in arranging to receive instruction. That is why the

International Correspondence Schools

Of Scranton, Pa.

Are enrolling at the present time on an average of from 12,000 to 15,000 new students each month. Think of what an army of educated workmen that is going to make in a short time, and think of how difficult it is going to be for the uneducated workman to compete with that higher grade of efficiency that is bound to result.

Take this matter home to yourself, apply it to your own case, and determine what you are going to do about it. If you conclude to keep up with the progress of the ambitious ones we will be glad to tell you in detail on what easy conditions you may do so. To make the inquiry and receive the information will not cost you anything.

And besides we are offering

Special Inducements Right Now

in the form of more liberal discounts than usual.

If you have a desire to learn further particulars, and it seems natural that you would, use the accompanying inquiry blank and full information will be sent you. Address all communications to
